Claims 33-34 and 37 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention. The specification does not reasonably provide enablement for the elements of claim 33. The specification does not enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the invention commensurate in scope with these claims. The specification does not provide an enabling disclosure of three gas components.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 32 and 36 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Sprafka et al. Sprafka et al show a gas stick component which can be either a flow sensor 10 or a check valve 200 configured to be mounted to an industry standard base and to have another component mounted vertically above. Flow sensor 10 uses VCR connections while check valve 200 uses C seals. The industry standard is read as SEMI 2787.

Claims 32-37 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Nagai et al. Nagai et al shows a vacuum system with vertically stacked components connected together and mounted on bases 202a, for example, see Figure 6. The Nagai et al system is read as a gas system. Nagai et al includes a pressure sensor and a regulator in the broad sense.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Any inquiry concerning this communication should be directed to John Fox at telephone number 703-308-2595.
